Ladies. by One of the old-fashioned, four-story houses of Guayaquil is a perfect hive, swarming with people of every color, grade, trade, and profession; the stores and pulperias, or small shops, of the ground floor, are filled with buyers and sellers, chattering like a flock of magpies (the Guayaquilenians talk a great deal, and in a loud voice); in the balconies of the second and third stories, you may see the whole domestic arrangement of the different occupants, of whom there are as many different renters, as there are small apartments ranged along the corridor. Small children abound in these elevations. In the highest balcony, in the evening, are seen the ladies of the house, tastefully dressed, commonly with high, carved, tortoise-shell combs in their hair, sitting in their hammocks, or leaning over the railings, enjoying the breeze from the river. The ladies of Guayaquil are generally handsome, possessing a fairness and delicacy of complexion, which we should hardly expect to find so near the equator, at a small elevation above the sea. This may partly be attributed to the moisture and heat of the climate, causing constant and free perspiration; and partly to the fact, that they seldom leave the house in the day time, except to go to mass, which they generally do early in the morning. They dress with great taste, and possess most pleasing and agreeable manners. The mantilla, or close veil, (that deceitful garment which, in Lima,...
