Not illustrated. 1915 Excerpt: . . . of threads to the inch is ordinarily determined by referring to a table or index plate which shows what the size of gears a and c should be, or the number of teeth each should have, for cutting any given number of threads per inch. Selecting the Change Gears for Thread Cutting. --Suppose a V-thread is to be cut on the end of the bolt B, Fig. 2, having a diameter of 1 inch and seven threads per inch of length, as shown at A in Fig. 1, which is the standard number of threads per inch for that diameter. First the change gears to use are found on plate which is shown enlarged in Fig. 3. This plate has three columns: The first contains different numbers of threads to the inch, the second the size gear to place on the spindle or stud at a (Fig. 2) for different threads, and the third the size of gear c for the leadscrew. As the thread selected as an example has 7 threads per inch, gear a should have 48 teeth, this being the number given in the second column opposite figure 7 in the first. By referring to the last column, we find that the lead-screw gear should have 84 teeth. These gears are selected from an assortment provided with the lathe and they are placed on the spindle and lead-screw, respectively. Intermediate gear b does not need to be changed as it is simply an...
